Randy Englund

Randy Englund shares his many years of experience, as a senior project manager and practitioner for 22 years at Hewlett-Packard Company and now as executive consultant for the Englund Project Management Consultancy (www.englundpmc.com). Whether teaching university courses or PMI seminars, he delights in creating memorable experiences, using multimedia, interactive discussions, and a systems approach to organizational learning. These derive from work in a corporate Project Management Initiative at HP, whose purpose as a project office was to lead the continuous improvement of project management across the company, and from leading workshops world-wide and consulting with product developers on a variety of cross-organizational projects. As a firm believer in action learning and sharing experiences, his insights and style “bring the concepts from way up there, to right down here, equip you with the tools, and empower you to act.” Randy co-authored three best-selling business/management books: Creating an Environment for Successful Projects, Creating the Project Office, and Project Sponsorship.
